Who Completes It:	The Court.
Who Signs It:	BY THE COURT: Circuit Court Judge/Circuit Court Commissioner.
Distribution of Form:	Court; copies to each of the parties. The child support agency should also receive a copy of the order prior to filing for approval, if required.
Accompanying Forms:	Generally none.
New Form/Modification:	Modified; last update 11/19.
Modifications:	Added, "If the child support order includes more than one child, child support does not automatically adjust when a child reaches the age of majority and is no longer eligible for child support."
Comments:	This form is for use in divorce and paternity cases. The form allows the modification of child support, family support and maintenance orders as well as issues related to placement and other non-property matters. The only way for the parties to avoid a wage assignment is for the court to make a finding of irreparable harm to the payer or because the parties have an account transfer under §767.267, Wis. Stats. If the parties are now or have in the past been the recipients of some form of public assistance (i.e., W2, food stamps, medical assistance, child care subsidy, etc.), the local child support agency must be notified before the court signs any order affecting a child support obligation to ensure that the interests of the public are protected. Child support must "sign off" on the agreement under those circumstances in the signature block provided for that agency prior to the court signing the order. The procedures for accomplishing this would be county specific.
